

Pentagon Reveals Economy Moves

Assign Rigid Spending Quotas To All Branches Of Military

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon Monday announced new economy moves that will cut 20,000 from the Air Force civilian payroll and reduce the aircraft industry work force from 910,000 to about 800,000.

These steps were tied into precise spending limits set for the Army, Navy and Air Force by the Defense Department to keep the military within the 38-billion-dollar ceiling fixed by the administration for the fiscal year which started July 1.

The Army appeared to have borne the brunt of the economy push. It was assigned a spending limit of $8,950,000,000, which is 220 million dollars less than President Eisenhower earmarked for the Army in his budget submitted to Congress last January.

However the Air Force, with a revised spending allocation of $17,900,000,000, will be permitted to spend 300 million dollars more than the budget estimate. And the Navy will be permitted to spend 11 million more than the original estimates for a total of $10,400,000,000.

The Air Force allocation, although higher than the original estimate, falls about one billion dollars below what Air Force officials were saying last month would be required to pay for their approved programs if costs continue to rise at the rate they increased during the spring.

Both the Air Force and the Navy had expected to spend more than the original budget to meet the rising costs of weapons, planes, missiles and aircraft.

The Defense Department's allocations for its own and for inter-service activities were increased by 24 million dollars to 750 million. The Pentagon said the addition will cover increased spending for military housing.

At the same time, Secretary of Defense Wilson withdrew from his spending account 115 million dollars which had been earmarked for additional costs of a variety of personnel services the Pentagon had intended to put into effect during the current fiscal year.

The Air Force announced its own economy campaign by order (continued on page 9)

Boy's Fascination For Trains Leads To $35,000 Wreck

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — A 6-year-old boy's fascination for trains led to a freight train derailment here and estimated damages at more than $35,000.

Police said the boy told them he "wanted to see a train go on two tracks." The youngster, who police refused to identify, accomplished this by throwing a switch beneath a halted Baltimore & Ohio freight in downtown Winchester Saturday.

The result: Six of the train's 31 cars were derailed; Winchester's entire traffic control light system was knocked out; four automobiles were smashed; one freight car rammed into the side of a grocery warehouse; a power line was knocked down, temporarily depriving part of the city of power and traffic had to be detoured for 14 hours.

There were no personal injuries.

Wrecked Airliner, Carrying 79, Sinking In Canadian Swamp

ISSOUDUN, Que. (AP) — The shattered fuselage of a chartered airliner became a waterlogged coffin Monday night for victims of Canada's worst air crash as it sank slowly into the muck of a swamp.

Some of the 79 dead were entombed in the aluminum passenger compartment, but Dep. Transport Minister John Baldwin ordered that no expense be spared to get the bodies and the wreckage out.

The main portion of the four-engine DC-4's fuselage was sinking into the 25-foot, water-filled hole that it plowed in the bog. Dr. Jean-Paul Pouliot, coroner of Lotbiniere County, said army pumping teams were being called in to free the wreck.

No one survived the crash, which occurred in a thunderstorm Sunday afternoon. The Maritime Central Airways plane was heading from London to Toronto with 79 British servicemen and their families who had been visiting the folks back home.

The plane went down 15 miles south of Quebec City on farmer Alfred Martel's land. His son, Jean-Guy, 12, and his employee, Ferdinand Olivier, 31, were working in a nearby field on a tractor.

They reported watching the stricken aircraft plunge straight down into the level, treeless muskeg.

"The big crater where the plane hit already was filled with water," said the boy.

The cause of the crash was still a mystery. Lightning generated by the severe summer storm was regarded as one possibility. There also was the question of the pilot.

Norman Ramay, 37, Montreal, His license had been suspended once for negligence after a non-fatal crash.

But the Canadian Air Lines Pilots Assn. said he had been working too hard at that time and blamed fatigue. Officials of Maritime Central, for whom he had flown for two years, described him as a "good, well-trained pilot."

The airline had chartered the plane to the Imperial Veterans Division of the Canadian Legion's Ontario command. The crash was only one death short of matching the worst chartered crash in history, which occurred at Cardiff, Wales, in March, 1950. Eighty persons were killed coming home from a soccer match in Dublin.

Report Rumor Molotov Has Killed Himself

LONDON (AP) — An American student who was in Moscow for the World Youth Festival said Monday night he was told of rumors there that ex-Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov had committed suicide.

George Abrams of Newton, Mass., telephoned The Associated Press in London from Helsinki, Finland, and said he heard the story from several sources.

Abrams explained how he had heard the story. He was in a Red Square and lectured on the American way of life, and went on: "After one of my speeches I was taken aside by a man who talked to me for two hours. He said he was an intimate of Dmitri Shepilov (also a former Soviet foreign minister) and that he had heard Molotov had committed suicide. He said the rumors were prevalent all over Moscow and he thought they were true."

"The next day I was told the same thing by another man," he said. "The other Americans at the festival told me they had heard the same story."

Jaycees Expel Youth Planning Trip To Red China

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicagoan who notified his parents Monday that he is going from Moscow to Red China has been expelled from membership and his position as secretary of the Chicago Jaycee Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

However, Robert Bushelle, president of the group, told a reporter he would "definitely deny" that the move was connected in any way with the man's decision to visit the Communist country. Bushelle said Dan O'Connell, 24, had not paid his dues, although billed twice, and had been knocked off membership rolls July 1.

O'Connell, formerly an advertising copy writer for Sears Roebuck & Co., quit his position with the firm to attend the Moscow Youth Festival. The firm then was no longer obligated to pay his dues, as it had been doing, Bushelle said.

The junketeer cabled his parents Monday that he is one of 47 Americans at the festival who accepted a bid from the Reds. He kept his departure for Moscow a secret from his parents, telling them he was going, vacationing in New York.

Report Chemical For Purifying Car Exhaust Gas

DETROIT (AP) — Discovery of a promising chemical for purifying automotive exhaust gas was reported Monday by Ford Motor Co. The company's antismog researchers describe the chemical as vanadium pentoxide, a powder they say eliminated more than 80 per cent of unburned hydrocarbon for 100 hours of laboratory tests with a single cylinder engine. They described these tests as equal to about 4,000 miles of actual driving.

In the tests exhaust gases were screened through the powder in a container placed in the engine's exhaust manifold.

HIS COMPETITORS

APPLY GOLDEN RULE

GALESBURG, Ill. (AP) — Ten competitors of the Brown Motor Co. are going all out to drum up business for it.

They're taking turns—two each day—as salesman at Brown's. The company's owner, Henry J. Brown, 55, has been in a hospital since he suffered a heart attack five days ago. Brown's wife died in 1948. He has four sons, one working in Paris, France; one in the Marine Corps, and two in school.

Brown has operated pretty much on a one-man basis, and there was no one to carry on. No one, that is, except the other car dealers.

Tuesday, they launched "Operation Brownie." Their advertisement carried the slogan, "See Brownie First." Also, they clubbed together and underwrote a full-page ad launching a used car sale at Brown's.

Doria Denies Charge He Used Union Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anthony Doria, a true and constant pal of labor racketeer Johnny Dio, was accused to his face Monday of putting $9,620 of union money to his own use.

Doria immediately and loudly denied it. The charge was flung by Carmine S. Bellino, staff investigator for the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

It came toward the end of a day which had been given over largely to testimony by Doria that Dio, a convicted extortionist, actually was a good and softhearted fellow who broke down and cried when his henchmen were caught thieving. The senators didn't appear impressed.

The money Doria was accused of taking belonged to a Meriden, Conn., local of the Allied Industrial Council (AIC), which used to be known as the AFL Auto Workers Union. The local went out of operation and Bellino said Doria, as secretary-treasurer of the union, neglected to list the $9,620 as an asset.

Instead, the committee aide said, Doria put the money into Inter-national Procurement Enterprises, a private firm in the business of making aerial maps.

Doria said he and Earl Heaton, then AIC president, and a man named Richard Loomis had interests in this firm, but he denied that any union money was diverted to it.

He said the $9,620 left over by the Meriden local was spent on union organizing activities on the West Coast or to finish payments on a lease Meriden local had on a meeting hall.

The money was derived from the sale of a $10,000 bond owned by the union. The bond apparently had not matured when it was cashed.

Bellino said he had found that Doria obtained a cashier's check (Continued On Page Nine)

Movie Producer, Morros, Tells Of Being U.S. Counterspy Against His Native Russia

NEW YORK (AP) — Movie producer Boris Morros, 62, said Monday he had served the United States for 12 years as a counterspy against the Soviet Union.

The Russian-born Hollywood figure, a naturalized American citizen, said the Soviets believed he was a spy for them but that actually he was making reports to the FBI on his encounters with the Russians.

He said that once while he was in Moscow, meeting top men of the Russian secret police, word questioning his loyalty to the Russian objectives was received in Moscow, from Soviet sources in America.

"Believe me I had to talk fast to get out of that one," he commented. "My life and the success of my mission depended on that."

Morros, born in St. Petersburg, now Leningrad, came to the United States in 1922. Among the motion pictures he produced were "Tales of Manhattan" and "Carnegie Hall."

Morros' name had arisen in the breaking of two Soviet spy cases. He figured in the indictment of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Soble and Jacob Albaum, and of Mr. and Mrs. George Zlatovsk, whom the United States is trying to extradite from France, Albaum and Mrs. Soble were sentenced to 5½ years each last Friday on spy charges. Soble will be sentenced Sept. 18.

Morros said neither his wife nor any of his acquaintances had "any inkling of my activity, which took me to Europe 66 times, including Moscow and East Berlin."

He said posing as a spy for the Russians didn't come easy. "I hated everything they stood for and when I had to express myself to high Russian officials and to American spies employed by them in terms of supporting their vicious ideology — I really had to do a more realistic acting job than any of the players whom I had ever directed in Hollywood," he said.

"The present regime in Moscow has been hatching a vast imperialistic plot for a Slav-dominated world," he said. Morros indicated he was making his role public because he had become very suspect by the Russians.

Morros said he went to Russia in 1935 to see his sick mother, who died, and later had dealings with Soviet diplomatic representatives in getting his father to the United States in 1943.

"From the time of my father's arrival," he said, "overtures from the Russians started and developed to such a degree that in 1945 they asked me outright to become an active agent for them."

Morros said he went straight to the FBI, reported the offer, and was told to agree to the Russian proposals and to make contacts.

White Says All Know Of U.S. Ban On Travel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department Monday warned 48 Americans now in Russia that going through with their planned trip to Red China would be "subversive" of U.S. foreign policy.

The strong statement was made at a news conference by Lincoln White, department press chief.

White said the Americans, part of 150 who attended a Communist-sponsored World Youth Festival in Moscow, are well aware of the U.S. ban on travel to Red China. And, he declared, "all of them are old enough to know what they're doing."

White said "travel to Red China is not only contrary to passport regulations in force, but would be subversive of the well-known foreign policy on which these passport regulations are based."

Policy Is Simple
This policy, he said, is simple: The United States refuses diplomatic recognition with China's Red Communist regime and holds travel to the China mainland to be "not in the American interest."

White refused to say what the State Department might do if the youths defy the ban. He repeated that a decision on action will be made when and if they set foot on Red Chinese soil.

Given Advice
His words went beyond warnings of possible actions given the Americans by U.S. Embassy officials in Moscow. More than a dozen called at the embassy for advice. All were told they might be guilty of passport misuse and violation of the "trading with the enemy" regulations, with consequent heavy fines and possible loss of passports.

White noted news reports that some of the youth delegates, rather than go so far as to hand over their passports to Red Chinese officials, were copying pertinent information from them on separate sheets of paper.

He called that a "gimmick," and said it still constituted use of the passport, "the thing specifically banned by regulations regarding Red China travel."

MOSCOW, (AP) — Six Americans who want to travel in Red China declined to turn over their passports to Chinese authorities Monday. Meanwhile the number of U. S. youths accepting Chinese invitations for the trip increased to 47.

New Strategy Mapped In Hunt For Woman, 83

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The week-long search for an 88-year-old woman mountain climber on Pike's Peak was halted Monday while officers mapped new strategy.

Undersheriff Clint Haugh took charge of the search for Mrs. Inestine B. Roberts, last seen above timberline Aug. 5.

"We're convinced she's up there somewhere and that she is dead," Haugh said. "We'll keep on searching until we find her. We're studying some detailed maps of the peak to determine what ground has been covered and where we still have to look."

POLES RIDICULE BRITISH OVER SUB WATCHING

LONDON (AP) — A Polish newspaper is sarcastic about the fuss the British made over two Polish submarines that showed up unexpectedly in the North Sea.

Warsaw newspaper Zycie said the subs were on a legitimate cruise but advised the Polish navy: "Don't frighten the British; they are more nervous than we thought." British navy and air craft kept a constant watch on the subs while they were near Britain.

Boston Papers, Negotiators Fail To Break Strike

BOSTON (AP) — Representatives of the Mailers Union and publishers of six metropolitan newspapers met with labor conciliators at the State House Monday but neither side "would give an inch" to break a three-day strike that has shut down the dailies.

Massachusetts Labor Commissioner Ernest A. Johnson, who reported the deadlock, said "We are trying to set up a joint meeting for Wednesday."

This would indicate that the papers—the morning and evening Globe, the morning Herald, evening Traveler, morning Record and evening American—would not be publishing at least until Thursday. The Christian Science Monitor, published in Boston, is not involved in the strike and has withdrawn public sale of its editions.

The papers struck have a combined circulation of 1½ million.

Kefauver, Blough Exchange Verbal Blows Over Steel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) insisted Monday there is lack of competition in the steel industry. But Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., disputed him with equal vigor.

Each standing his own ground and at times breaking in while the other was talking, Kefauver and Blough disagreed on about everything connected with the July 1 increase of $6 a ton in the price of steel.

Kefauver recited instances of identical bids in the delivered price of steel, and said there would be more competition if steel companies quoted prices based on their production costs rather than following each other with price increases.

"This is competition; it isn't monopoly," Blough replied. Blough argued there is competition when a consumer can choose between two suppliers even though they offer the same price.

The exchange occurred in a hearing by the Senate Antitrust subcommittee, which is making a study of what Kefauver calls "administered price" industries.

Our Credit Is Good

A great deal of worrying is done by some people over the steady rise of installment credit in the United States. But there are good reasons for welcoming it as one of the soundest features of American economic life.

Obviously a number of major industries would be hard put to find a continuing mass market if people couldn't buy their products on time. Houses, automobiles, furniture, big household appliances, all cost more than most Americans can pay for out of cash reserves.

Thus installment buying sustains a big portion of the U.S. economy, with all that means in jobs, return on investment and so on.

From the consumer's standpoint, being able to buy on credit of this sort makes the difference between having and not having many conveniences of life.

The buyer could, of course, save the money in advance of purchasing. But the demands and temptations of modern living in this country are such today that not enough people would be likely to do that.

Installment purchasing is a kind of enforced saving plan—after the fact of purchase. It has a little reverse English on it. Instead of collecting interest on his savings, the buyer has to pay it, for he has already used the money loaned to him by somebody else.

Despite the extra cost this means, America's installment buyers seem to like the system very much. They keep on increasing their installment load as the nation grows and their own wants expand.

The worriers usually say all this is fine enough when times are good, but what happens if you have a depression?

In a recent series, the New York World-Telegram and Sun noted, however, that after the crash of 1929 the leading installment finance companies had losses of less than two-thirds of one per cent on outstanding credit obligations amounting to 941 million dollars.

The record throughout the development of heavy installment sales shows that by and large Americans are superior credit risks and good financial managers. They don't usually buy more than they can ultimately pay for, and they honestly seek to pay every cent of what they owe.

So long as these basic facts hold true, there does not appear any great point in worrying about the size of the country's installment credit bill—in good times or any other.

Low Scores in 'Gluck Game'—Gather Own Facts—Stand By for Invasion—Turnabout's Fair Play

BY DOUGLAS LARSEN, NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Everybody's playing the "Gluck Game" at cocktail parties.

Rules are simple. You ask a person some questions you think he ought to know by reason of his job. Or you ask him to pronounce some name you think he should know.

Each miss is called a "Gluck." Four "Glucks" and you're out. Game got started when Maxwell H. Gluck, newly appointed ambassador to Ceylon, didn't know the name of the prime minister of Ceylon and couldn't pronounce "Jawaharlal" (as in Jawaharlal Nehru) during a Senate hearing on his confirmation.

Results of the "Gluck Game" so far make Gluck seem like a pretty knowledgeable gent. For example:

Two Pentagon Army colonels did not know the name of the Secretary of the Air Force. Four State Department employees couldn't pronounce Jawaharlal, either. A British embassy attaché did not know the name of the prime minister of Canada. No person at any party could come up with the name of the head of the Federal Civil Defense Agency.

A colonel in the press information office of the Air Force did not know the name of the undersecretary of the Air Force.

In case you're wondering: You pronounce Jawaharlal — "Ja-var-har-lal." Accent on the "va."

(Actually this is a consensus. The first two employees queried at the Indian Embassy admitted they didn't know how to pronounce it. Three others, who claimed they did know how, disagreed.)

The prime minister of Ceylon is Solomon West Ridgway Dias Bandaranaike.

The secretary of the Air Force is James H. Douglas.

The prime minister of Canada is John George Diefenbaker.

The civil defense administrator is Leo A. Hoegh.

The undersecretary of the Air Force is Malcolm A. McIntyre.

And you pronounce "Gluck" to rhyme with "Duke."

BY A STRANGE COINCIDENCE the Air Force Assn. held its annual convention here to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Air Force the same week that the Institute of Scientific Studies for the Prevention of Alcoholism held its annual meeting in town. Delegates to the ISSFPA were on hand to see all previous Washington convention drinking records broken. Before the AFA set this new mark it was held by a psychiatrist convention.

The benefit to the AFA from the ISSFPA being here with them was dubious. The ISSFPA experts all talked about the terrible aftermaths of excessive drinking. By the end of their session AFA delegates had their own first-hand evidence of this fact.

THE TASK FORCE which is being mobilized to plan for the October visit of England's Queen Elizabeth is beginning to resemble the organization like built for the invasion of Normandy.

The State Department has set up an intergovernmental committee to coordinate the participation of about a dozen U. S. agencies in the event. The Commonwealth embassies here have a 10-member committee to coordinate their efforts.

There are committees set up to coordinate the work of the U. S. agencies with those of the Commonwealth embassies. A spokesman for all the committees reports:

"So far we've run across no serious problems and everything is being planned according to plans."

SEN. CLINTON ANDERSON of New Mexico had his picture taken leaving the White House the other day.

"Hey, where's my quarter?" the Senator demanded of the photographers.

They looked at him as if he were barmy.

The Indians in my state charge a quarter every time their picture is taken and I know they'd want me to charge the same rates," he explained.

The photographers searched their pockets and there wasn't a quarter among them.

"Tell you what, Senator," Ed Alley of United Press Pictures said. "You take our picture and we'll call it square."

Anderson agreed that this would satisfy his Indians, borrowed one of the cameras and shot a picture of the photographers.

Our immortal souls, while righteous, are by God himself beautified with the title of his own image and similitude. — St. Walter Raleigh.

Aaron Burr was vice president when he killed Alexander Hamilton in a duel, but his term had expired at the time of his trial.

The married Brown children are slowly and subtly pushing their parents into old age.

Though their parents are still alert and active, the children have stopped asking their advice and started giving it.

Their parents love the big, old house they have lived in for nearly 30 years. But the Brown children keep harping on the theme: "What you need is a small, modern house. It's silly for you to be rattling around in a big, old house."

The fact that the big, old house is home and the neighbors old friends doesn't keep the Brown children from trying to substitute their idea of a suitable place to live.

Sure, Mr. Brown comes home tired after a day's work. But his job is his life. And yet his children insist that he ought to retire and take it easy.

GIVE CREDIT The Brown children are good about writing letters. And, of course, their letters mean a lot to their parents. But they would have a better effect if they were not over solicitous. It makes the Browns feel old to know their children worry about them all the time.

Nothing does more to keep an older couple young than the feeling that their children respect their judgment. They should get credit for being able to manage their own lives.

But the most loving children often overlook that fact. In the name of love, they actually push their parents into old age.

So long as there is the sea and fish and seafood in it, there'll be New Bedford men and boats to bring it to American tables.

New Bedford, Mass., women, of course, are skilled seafood cooks. Mrs. Jacob Simonsen, wife of one of the earliest scallop fishermen, gave us her cherished scallop chowder recipe.

Scallop Chowder (Serves 6)
One cup diced carrots, 1 small onion, minced, ½ cup chopped scallops, 2 cups diced potatoes, 4 cups water, ½ pound scallops, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk.

Boil carrots, onion, scallops, potatoes in salted water until done. Add diced scallops and boil for 5 minutes. Make cream sauce by stirring flour and butter together in double boiler, adding milk, and cooking until thick. Add to rest of ingredients. If desired, ½ cup of sweet cream may be added.

★ DR. JORDAN SAYS ★

Relief Usually Available

To Victims of Hay Fever

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN

One of the most important of the allergies is hay fever resulting from the pollen of the ragweed.

For a person susceptible to this disorder, the best treatment is still attempted desensitization by injections of extract of the pollen. For those who have not had this treatment, or who obtain incomplete relief, other measures have to be considered.

One such measure is to plan a vacation for the worst part of the season in a place in which the ragweed pollen is absent, or almost so. For this purpose, several places in North America are available. There is practically no ragweed in the Pacific Northwest and northern California, and very little in southern California, Arizona and New Mexico. The Rocky Mountains have little ragweed, though ragweed grows in the plains just east of the mountains. Ragweed is scarce in parts of Florida, and there is a strip of territory in western and northern Maine away from the seacoast which is claimed to be free of this weed.

FOR A LIST of communities and their ragweed pollen counts, I would refer readers to a pamphlet entitled "Hay Fever and What You Can Do About It," published by the American Foundation for Allergic Diseases, Inc., 274 Madison Avenue, New York 16, N.Y. (price 10 cents).

FOR THE person who stays at home there are other measures to consider. One of these is air conditioning, particularly if the process includes washing or filtering the air as well as cooling it.

There also are drugs which help to relieve the worst symptoms. Those which have the most dramatic effects are the antihistamines which have been available for several years. These are taken by mouth.

They do not in any sense constitute a permanent cure but often bring striking relief of symptoms for several hours at a time.

IT ISN'T entirely safe to take these antihistamines without direction. Unpleasant side effects have been found. Some people are made sleepy by some of the preparations and this can be dangerous in driving. Nevertheless, a great many people are tremendously helped by drugs and air conditioning and these measures have aided many thousands to survive the ragweed hay fever season much more comfortably than in the past.

Many people also get considerable relief by taking weak doses of pollen extract every day or so during the season. There are also drugs of the steroid class which are used with considerable benefit during the season.

Thus it is possible for most victims of ragweed fever today to get a considerable amount of relief one way or another.

The albatross, whose death brought ill fortune in Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner," is one of the most magnificent of flying creatures, having a wingspread of as much as 12 feet. It may soar for hours without apparent effort, and in southern seas the albatross is often the only living creature seen for days. In courting, the birds cross bills and seem to fence like swordsmen, while uttering strange cries.

Slaps Get Us Nowhere With Attention-Demanding Child

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Early one afternoon a friend of Malda's mother whom she hadn't seen for three years dropped in for a visit.

It wasn't very successful. Malda's baby brother behaved beautifully. He permitted himself to be thoroughly adored; then fell asleep almost as soon as he was placed in his crib.

But Malda refused to take her nap. Finally when she had to be allowed downstairs, she used every reason she could think of to divert her mother's attention from the guest. The loose wig of her doll needed securing. She had to go to the bathroom. Where was her book with the picture of the three baby kittens?

At last, exasperated beyond endurance, Malda's mother slapped her—and took her back upstairs.

There Malda succeeded in her purpose. She got rid of the guest. She screamed so long and so loudly that the guest couldn't stand it and remembered she had some shopping to do.

Thus, slapping our attention-demanding tyrant gets nowhere. The experienced parent has learned this—and deals with him by arranging attention to him BEFORE he starts in to demand it.

You take an old pillow slip. Into it you put some of Malda's forgotten toys. On your first trip downtown, you visit the dime store where you pick up some new ones. These you mix in with the old ones and tie the bag shut.

Then you call Malda to you and say, "This is your Surprise Bag. It only comes out of the closet when we go to see people or people come to see me. Before I start talking to them, I'll open the surprise bag. With your eyes closed, you can reach into it—and see what you find. After that you can reach into it one more time. Now before I put it away, close your eyes, reach into it—and see what treasure you find."

When the Surprise Bag succeeds in reducing Malda's attention demands, don't run off with the idea that she's been soothed by the toy watch or playing cards she's pulled out of it.

What has fed her hunger for our attention is the sight of the white bag beside our chair—its visible, comforting assurance that her happiness is on our mind even while we seem to be attending to our guest.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

"HOLLYWOOD" — A celebrated "trouble picture" is rocking and rolling on its expensive way these days.

It is "The Old Man and the Sea," one of those flinched epics that come along to plague movie makers now and then. Last year, producer Leland Hayward and director Fred Zinnemann shot for three months on the Hemingway classic in Cuba. The project blew up amid mutterings between the two. After new locations in Hawaii, "The Old Man and the Sea" is finishing up at Warner Brothers with a new director, John Sturges. The old man is the same: Spencer Tracy.

The amiable grouch was spending a brief rest from the tossing fishing boat in his dressing room. He surely looked the part — white, sunburned face and a white stubble of beard.

What caused all the trouble in Cuba? The script?

"No, there was nothing wrong with the script. It's the same one we're using now. It's all Hemingway's words; we haven't changed a thing. People may hate the picture, but they can't claim it isn't Hemingway."

Then what was the problem? "Don't ask me. It was a matter between Hayward and Zinnemann. Maybe Zinnemann couldn't stand to see my face every morning — I don't know. Anyway, he finally quit."

"People always think actors have something to do with such things. But the actor has no control over how long a picture takes. That's entirely up to the producer and director."

"Oh, an actor can get drunk, but then he's open to legal action. If he gets sick, the company is covered by insurance. There's no real way he can stall production."

Tracy said the picture will cost five million dollars. Three million went to the Cuba location, which will produce only 20 per cent of the film.

"Yeah, I really wanted to do 'The Old Man and the Sea.' But if I had known what trouble it was going to be, I never would have agreed to it. This is for the birds."

Hayward may also decide film making is for the birds. On his first picture, "Mister Roberts," director John Ford fell ill and had to be replaced in Mid-Pacific. At least the movie made money. Another headache picture, "Spirit of St. Louis," ran up a bill of six million and may never see the light.

OFFICIAL RECOGNITION
CALUMET, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Historical Commission has at last recognized Calumet's claim to having the oldest concrete pavement still in service.

The commission has made official a historical site marker placed at the intersection of Portland and 7th streets.

The marker was erected in 1956 to observe the 50th anniversary of the construction of the streets.

Well-Meaning Children Push Parents Into Old Age

The married Brown children are slowly and subtly pushing their parents into old age.

Though their parents are still alert and active, the children have stopped asking their advice and started giving it.

Their parents love the big, old house they have lived in for nearly 30 years. But the Brown children keep harping on the theme: "What you need is a small, modern house. It's silly for you to be rattling around in a big, old house."

The fact that the big, old house is home and the neighbors old friends doesn't keep the Brown children from trying to substitute their idea of a suitable place to live.

Sure, Mr. Brown comes home tired after a day's work. But his job is his life. And yet his children insist that he ought to retire and take it easy.

GIVE CREDIT The Brown children are good about writing letters. And, of course, their letters mean a lot to their parents. But they would have a better effect if they were not over solicitous. It makes the Browns feel old to know their children worry about them all the time.

Nothing does more to keep an older couple young than the feeling that their children respect their judgment. They should get credit for being able to manage their own lives.

But the most loving children often overlook that fact. In the name of love, they actually push their parents into old age.

JERSEYVILLE—Alfred P. Vonderheide of Webster Grove, Mo., was a Jerseyville visitor Saturday morning enroute to his farm in the Hardin vicinity.

Vonderheide purchased a tract of more than 160 acres in the locality near the northern city limits of Hardin, early this year and since that time has planned a subdivision in the area facing the river front.

He has sold a number of lots and at the present time at least six new homes are being erected there with construction to start on more at a later date.

The locality on both sides of the river from Hardin southward has been the site of much clubhouse and dwelling construction the past five years.

Expect Remodeling At Christian Church To Be Completed Oct. 15

Central Christian church, 359 West College avenue, has been undergoing a massive $124,000 face lifting for the last several months.

Each evening since the latter part of April as the plaster dust settles, Rev. Gerald Miller can see a little more progress being made to fortify and beautify the 50 year old church building.

As the plans go, by Oct. 15 the building will have completely remodeled educational facilities and offices and a new roof and all new wiring. An additional floor is being added to the educational building which will increase the capacity by 300 students.

The sanctuary is being re-touched, too. A new baptistry and chancel are being added. The organ will be partially rebuilt and reconditioned as soon as the other work is completed.

An all new stainless steel kitchen is being added. The capacity of Fellowship Hall is being expanded to 400.

This is being done to relieve the overcrowded conditions in the Sunday church school. As many as 600 pupils were being crowded into a plant that was originally intended to accommodate no more than 450 young people.

With the additional space as many as 750 students can be comfortably accommodated each Sunday morning.

Rev. Miller said, "In the past all we have been doing was crowding them in."

With the added space many new pupils are expected to take advantage of the spacious Sunday school and its much improved program. A complete nursery will be added which will be appropriately staffed; every department will be departmentalized and especially in the high school age and young adult departments will benefit from the vast program of expansion.

Pledges for the $124,000 were raised last November before construction began. The entire amount will be paid within three years; all pledges were made to extend over a three year period.

Each evening since the latter part of April as the plaster dust settles, Rev. Gerald Miller can see a little more progress being made to fortify and beautify the 50 year old church building.

Death and Taxes Still a Good Bet

Taxes in Egypt were collected in the Royal Treasury (above), took 20 per cent of output of land. It was this ancient tax that the Bible refers to as "Pharaoh's fifth."

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, in a letter to George Washington, once wrote: "... in this world nothing is certain but death and taxes."

Taxes are one of man's most ancient companions and persistent problems. A subject of intense debate today, they were also a subject of intense debate 4,000 years ago and for approximately the same reason. Taxation can be traced to the earliest civilizations, when man first began to provide through government for services he could not furnish himself. This was also the beginning of man's long search for the means to pay their cost.

No one to this day has found a wholly satisfactory method of taxing, or one that meets with universal approval. Sometimes, instead of producing revenue, taxation has caused economic turmoil, social upheaval, or national catastrophe.

In the world of taxes, almost nothing is new. Yesterday's Roman chariot was taxed just as heavily as today's family car, but at least there was no "F.O.B. Detroit" in those days.

The illustrations on this page are from "The Story of Taxes," published by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Wilmington, Delaware.

THE IMPACT OF TAXES on history is graphically pictured here as Rehoboam announces to a group of petitioners that he is keeping tax rates which his father, Solomon, set. Result was secession of the Ten Tribes of Israel.

MAGNA CARTA, which King John was forced to sign, was partly to redress tax grievances.

BEANS LEAD GRAIN ADVANCE

By WILLARD ROBERTSON
CHICAGO, (U)—Soybean futures led a sharp upward movement on the Board of Trade Monday, climbing eight cents a bushel at times on general buying and short covering.

Wheat advanced more than three cents and rice as much as four cents in the active buying influenced by a government forecast for smaller harvests than traders had predicted. Corn and oats lagged behind the rest of the list but showed gains.

New wheat closed 2 1/4 to 3 1/4 cents higher, corn 1 1/2 up to 1/4 down, oats 3/4 to 3/8 higher, rice 2 1/2 to 4 cents higher, soybeans 3 1/4 to 6 1/2 cents higher, and hard 38 to 45 cents a hundred pounds higher.

A sharp gain in soybeans generally had been expected because the Department of Agriculture, in a report after the close Friday, estimated soybean production at only 428 million bushels.

This report was far below trade thinking on the subject, and if crushing and export demand held up as expected could make for short supplies, traders said. Progress of the crop, which got a late start due to wet weather, therefore took on added importance. Current weather is favorable for development of soybeans and also the late corn crop.

New York Bond Market

NEW YORK (U)—U.S. government bonds drifted lower in light transactions Monday.

Corporates closed steady on balance with rails top-grade investment issues and utilities firm. Industrials had a tendency toward the downside. Convertibles generally were lower.

Corporate trading increased to $3,400,000 par value on the Big Board from $2,800,000 last Friday.

New York Stock Market

By WALTER RUSSEWITZ
NEW YORK (U)—The stock market dropped sharply Monday in a slow session.

Losses among the blue chip stocks ranged from fractions to more than $2 a share. Aircrafts and a few specialties were higher.

Traders were playing a cautious, waiting game. They appeared to be staying on the sidelines until there was some indication that the current decline had run its course. Brokers said many investors also were waiting for a better look at the business outlook for this year's fourth quarter.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $1.90 to $179.40, erasing an estimated $9,000,000,000 from the quoted value of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

The small turnover of 1,650,000 shares robbed the session of some significance. This compared with Friday's volume of 1,570,000 shares, which was the lightest day in five months.

The decline brought the AP average $188.80 July 12. Industrials lost $2.90, rails $2.10 and utilities 30 cents.

Some of the day's news was of a bearish nature. There were new signs of weakness in the copper price structure and steel operations continued to lag under the 80 per cent rate. Brokers insisted, however, that these developments in themselves caused little selling.

Metals, oils, steels and chemicals were among the bigger losers. Rails and motors were down, along with the rest of the market.

The American Stock Exchange showed no turnover of 440,000 shares compared with Friday's 720,000 shares.

W. Marquiss Dies; Former Quiny Newspaperman

SOUTHBRURY, Conn. (U)—Walter Otis Marquiss, 65, author and former Quincy, Ill., newspaperman, died Monday at his home.

Marquiss, a native of Monticello, Ill., owned the Southbury Press, a printing company. He was the author of the books, "Youth and Love," published in 1935, and "Brutus Was an Honorable Man," published in 1945.

He began his career as a reporter for his hometown newspaper during high school. After graduation he went to the Quincy Herald-Whig.

He left the paper 10 years later, after he had risen to managing editor, and joined the staff of The Associated Press in New York.

Survivors include the widow, a daughter and three sisters.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday.

BOTTLE GROUND—Neatly stacked row on row, a veritable sea of giant bottles covered the ground at Vichy, France, one of Europe's most famous spas. Some 100 million bottles of Vichy water are sent all over the world each year, and nearly 17 million are stocked in the fields ready for buyers.

Interpreting The News

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

A good many people have been worrying lest the United States, relying too heavily on strategic airpower, finds herself impotent in the face of small-scale Communist aggression.

The question is whether the United States should be prepared to meet given situations with power limited to their importance—as it did in Korea—or whether it must decide in each case to run the risk of all-out war by the use of all-out weapons.

Would the United States meet a limited Russian invasion of Iran designed to enforce some policy or occupy only a northern section of territory, with "massive retaliation," or take a limited defeat passively?

The answer is obvious. A limited defeat in Iran would be preferable to total atomic war.

But the limited defeat would be serious, nevertheless. It would weaken the faith of all the allies in their mutual aid treaties, and start a trend toward knuckling under to Russia. The Russians would figure it just that way, and might begin adventures just for that purpose.

There is an alternative. It is to be prepared to meet enemy force with just enough force to scotch his plans. This was done in Korea.

Since then, the United States has shifted her military posture to emphasize on retaliation. At this very moment she is withdrawing from troops and engaging Japan as a base which provided the initial force for Korea.

She is preparing to reduce her forces in Europe to rely more heavily upon her allies there.

Even while these movements are taking place, however, the Pentagon and the State Department are reported preparing the necessity of being prepared to fight "brush wars."

Russia maintains a highly flexible relationship between her political objectives and her military ability. She can apply a given amount of pressure, withdrawing at will if resistance should prove too great.

Massive retaliation means application of unlimited pressure which troops be withdrawn until it has reached the ultimate in destruction. Its existence as a deterrent is important. Reliance upon it as the sole or major weapon however, is calculated to handicap diplomacy in matters ranging below the ultimate.

FAIR BOARD APPROVES PLAN TO RENOVATE COLISEUM

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (U)—The Illinois State Fair Advisory Board Monday approved preliminary plans for a $634,000 rehabilitation of the Coliseum.

Stillman J. Standard, state agriculture director, said his department expects to complete the work in time for next year's State Fair.

The seating capacity will be increased from 2,400 to about 3,000 and wooden flooring and underpinning, which has caused concern as a possible fire hazard will be replaced with concrete.

The building's classic style architecture will be modernized.

The Legislature this year appropriated $634,000 to renovate the Coliseum project. An additional $26,000 was appropriated to pay for preliminary architects' and engineering expenses in planning the rehabilitation.

Horse Trainer Jim Fitzsimmons saddled 87 winners in 1954 when he was 80.

SENATE BILL AUTHORIZES FUNDS FOR ARMY PROJECTS

WASHINGTON (U)—The Senate Monday night passed a bill authorizing $1,445,285,000 in military construction projects throughout the world.

The authorization passed by voice vote included $1,203,412,000 in new military projects, compared with $1,603,072,000 voted by the House. The difference will have to be worked out between the two chambers.

Before the bill passed, Sen. Stennis (D-Miss.) said he fears the Nike defense system would be unable to cope with the sort of attack that could be expected on American cities in a major war.

Stennis, floor manager for the bill, is chairman of an Armed Services subcommittee which has taken months of closed-door testimony on U.S. military installations.

Release First Vaccine Against Asiatic Flu

WASHINGTON (U)—The Public Health Service Monday released for military and civilian use the first 502,000 doses of the new vaccine to combat Asiatic flu.

Surgeon General LeRoy E. Burney said more vaccine is now being tested and every effort is being made by the government and industry to make it available for use.

The vaccine output is being rushed to prepare for a probable outbreak of the new flu strain this fall and winter, he added.

Burney said the vaccine released consisted of 320,000 doses made by National Drug Co., Philadelphia and 82,000 produced by Lederle Laboratories, New York.

Meany: AFL-CIO Will Help Probers Find Corruption

CHICAGO (U)—President George Meany Monday asserted the AFL-CIO will cooperate with congressional committees "turning up corruption in labor."

He also took a firm stand against labor leaders invoking the Fifth Amendment to protect themselves.

Meany, a husky, plain-talking man, upheld established AFL-CIO policy on both points at a news conference at the end of the first session of the organization's Executive Council.

Referring to testimony brought out in the current hearings in Washington, Meany stated: "Things that have been exposed are things that labor should not be proud of. I'm interested in eradicating these things."

A reporter told Meany there has been "some feeling" among many members of the 29-man Council that the Senate Committee investigating labor and management practices had treated labor unfairly.

There also have been reports that some labor leaders want to shift to a policy of attacking the Senate committee.

"I have not heard of it," Meany said, and he added: "There should not be any change in the policy of cooperating with any committee turning up corruption in labor."

Meany said the Senate Ratified Investigating Committee, "did a good job as far as it went."

"We'll cooperate legislatively or on any other way," he said, but he added that his organization would "resist any attempt to fasten restrictive laws on labor as a whole because of the sins of a few."

Says 'Brain Of Alcatraz' Admits Seven Break-Ins

TUSCOLA, Ill. (U)—Federal authorities say Cecil Wright, called the "brain of Alcatraz" because he studied law in prison and won freedom, has admitted breaking into seven Illinois post offices.

A federal agent said Wright, 49, got a total of $123.13. The agent, Post Office Inspector H. E. Roberts, said Wright admitted break-ins at Trilla, Bushton, Rardin, Ashmore, Lerna, Brocton and Hindsboro.

Roberts quoted Wright as saying he got money at only three of the break-ins—Trilla, Bushton and Lerna.

Wright is being held in Tuscola, charged with three area burglaries and the post office break-ins and robberies.

If convicted on the post office charges, he could be sentenced to a maximum of 70 years.

Wright spent 15 years in Stateville Prison at Joliet, Ill., for a drugstore burglary and four years in Alcatraz for a post office burglary which netted him only $2.43.

SIX FLIERS ESCAPE UNHURT IN TAKEOFF CRASH OF BOMBER

HONOLULU (U)—All six Navy fliers aboard escaped unhurt Monday from a Neptune bomber minutes before it exploded and burst into flames after a takeoff crash.

The plane was destroyed.

A spokesman said the plane's port engine apparently failed just after takeoff from Barbers Point Naval Air Station. With its landing wheels up, the twin-engine craft skidded to a stop on its belly.

Lt. Cmdr. John Fottrell, New York, the pilot, and Lt. Archie Ungewood, copilot, and crew crew of four all jumped clear just before fire flared up.

Doria Denies Charge He Used Union Funds

for $9,620 and that this was deposited to the account of his map making company.

When Bellino referred to Doria's handling of union funds as "very, very bad," Doria protested.

"The union was broke when I went in there as secretary-treasurer," he said. "They had $1,643 in a tin box. My bad methods, as you call them, increased those assets at one point to 1 1/2 million dollars."

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy noted that the union now is so broke that it was unable to pay for a recent banquet.

"They were broke when I started, and went broke six months after I left," Doria retorted. "I think that speaks well of my methods."

Doria left the union, by request, last March. One reason was that AFL-CIO critics said his associations with Dio made him unfit.

Youths Told Red China Trip Subversive To U.S.

Whether the refusal to hand over the passports will mean the six cannot make the trip will not be known until Tuesday.

Fred Grab, Alexandria, Va., who gathered up the passports, said the Chinese claim they must have the passports for identification purposes. The Chinese have promised not to stamp visas on the passports.

The trip will take eight days. After arriving in Peking the delegation will visit various provinces and then return to Peking.

Abandon Attempts To Rescue Alpinists

about 300 feet below the ledge is Italian guide Stefano Longhi, 44, also on the rescue.

It is presumed that two Germans fell to their deaths. The drop to the valley floor below is 6,000 feet.

Longhi, who apparently was injured in a rock fall several days ago, was seen Monday through telescopes but his body was hanging upside down, motionless and covered with snow.

Corti arrived at the glacier station 26 hours after his rescue. He was wrapped in a sleeping bag with only his face showing. He smiled faintly, but did not speak or move.

XXIV I SAT on the floor, waiting. I didn't know what to say and wasn't sure I could talk anyway. At least it looked like I wasn't to get beat up right away and I was glad.

Dan said, "Now you listen, Pike. Don't be a scared. I come to talk about what's been happenin'."

Excitement sent prickles running over my scalp. It struck me that Dan might want to deal. I nodded, swallowing hard, wishing Blanchard was there.

"You don't tell anybody what I'm a-goin' to say, Pike. You do and I'll kill you."

I nodded again. "First, you tell me. Sposin' Blanchard had Dorsey. What'd he do?"

I wanted to say what Dan wanted me to say. Dan wasn't over-smart. His mind went down one track. You try to make it go down another one and it'd jump the rails. I could see the way his lips worked that he was knotted up. I had to say the right things or I might break him loose. I said, "Why, I reckon he'd just take him and go."

I shook my head. "Nothing to come back for."

Dan took a big sigh and his mouth came close to a smile. I'd said the right thing then, I could see. It came to me what he was worrying about. He didn't care about Blanchard or Dorsey or anybody, except Lillian. He was afraid the trouble was going to hurt his chances with Lillian. I knew he didn't have any more chance with Lillian than I did but I wasn't about to say so.

Dan said, "I can get Dorsey, give him to Blanchard. Now wait a minute." Dan's big, red-rimmed eyes nailed me down. "I ain't a-sayin' we took him, Pike."

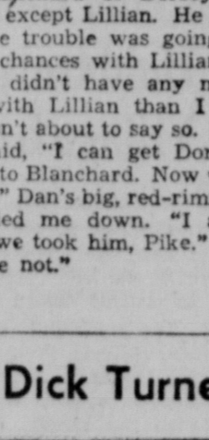

"Course not."

BORED "COED"—Two-month-old Wan Hyang Jin seems to find college life a bit boring as she accompanies her mother to class at Kent State University in Kent, Ohio. Mrs. Jin, whose husband is a political science major at the university, was caught without a baby sitter so she took the youngster along when she had to do some catchup work on her architectural drawing course. The parents, both from Seoul, Korea, expect to return home when Mr. Jin completes his studies.

McLean County Youth Shows Grand Champion

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—A 1,060-pound Hereford, aptly named "Chubby," was crowned king of all beef steer breeds Monday at the Illinois State Fair. The grand champion was shown by Richard Haas, 18-year-old Heyworth farmer.

Chubby had won the junior department crown Saturday at the fair for his young owner, who farms 160 acres near the McLean County town.

The red-and-white animal began its career by winning the grand championship last week at the McLean County Fair.

The reserve grand champion in the State Fair open class Monday was "Banne 21," an Angus owned by Tim Pierce of West Woodlawn Farm, Preston.

These animals and other titlists, including the leading brown Swiss bull owned by John H. Ellis and Sons of Penfield, will take part in the multimillion-dollar parade of stock royalty Friday.

Gov. Stratton stroled for three hours during the morning through the light crowd. His inspection included art exhibits and a sip of milk at the dairy show. He gave close looks at agricultural implements, the Republican party tent and barns holding Angus cattle, a variety he breeds.

Junior livestock contenders bowed in the Shorthorn breeding beef division to the entry of Richard Inness, 14, of Galesburg. His cow was "Diamond Prince."

Richard is a freshman at Lombard Junior High School in Galesburg.

Blue ribbon taker in the polled Shorthorn class of the juniors is "Rosewood 55th," a cow owned by Bob Hatch, 15, of Urbana.

Wild Animal In Bushes 'Twas Sleepy Possum

"Some kind of a wild animal is in the bushes," was the startling information telephoned to the police department at 10:26 o'clock Sunday night.

Patrolmen Fred Splain and Lynn Chapman set out on the safari which centered in the 1300 block on West College avenue.

They wore their badges of authority, sometimes useless, when stalking wild animals—and their service revolvers.

The officers soon flushed their quarry — a good-sized opossum, which tried to play dead. The officers weren't fooled by the varmint's actions.

Mr. Possum was given the bum's rush from the neighborhood—hours to leave town, so to speak.

At the police station later Sunday night it was recalled that the possum population appears to be on the increase. Several of them have been found run over in the streets during the summer.
